How to Help ‘Left Behind’ Places

Growing up in a Crap Town

Hull was declared the crappiest town in England in a book named Idler’s Guides to Crappiest Towns in the UK in 2003. Although the authors didn’t seem to think about what their words would mean to the people the Very Worst Town, there wasn’t a fold of the city not in the know about its new, bastardised title.
Empirical focus

Doncaster (Sheffield City Region, UK)
- among the UK cities with the lowest economic growth rate recorded between 1981 and 2011 (Martin et al., 2014)
- among the 15% most deprived UK local authority districts and among the 40 least competitive cities in the UK (Huggins & Thompson, 2013).

SCR LEP targets
- 70,000 jobs
- 6,000 new businesses
- Enterprise policy delivered through the Growth Hub

Localism and devolution

- Place-based development: ‘realising every place’s potential’ (HMG, 2010)

- Promises: the empowerment of localities to shape their economic strategies and deliver local solutions to local problems (HMG, 2010; Harrison, 2014; Pike et al., 2015)

- A stepping stone in shifting power to local communities and businesses and ending the ‘Whitehall knows best’ culture (HMG, 2010; Harrison, 2014; Pike et al., 2015)

- LEPs are expected to give localities a voice and empower local actors in shaping strategy and policy
“The empowerment of subnational governments represents an opportunity for localities to assume greater control over their development ... [as] it affords them latitude to tailor expenditures, policies, and strategies to both the opportunities that arise from, and the challenges imposed by, local socioeconomic and institutional conditions and realities”

(Rodríguez-Pose and Wilkie, 2017, p.152)
Critique of LEPs

- “LEPs are ‘free’ to intervene in the economy as they see fit – so long as they can resource it” Pugalis and Shutt (2012, p.24)

- “‘localism’ is an illusion since the LEPs will not have the necessary power or resources to carry out the tasks set for them” Bentley et al. (2010, p.536)
To what extent have actors at the subnational level been empowered (to deliver local solutions to local problems)?
Lens: enterprise policy

- Key objective of localism: economic rebalancing through private sector-led growth

- LEPs entrusted to “provide the clear vision and strategic leadership to drive sustainable private sector-led growth and job creation in their area” (HMG, 2010, p.13)

- Expected to deliver more than “‘lifestyle' businesses that have no aspiration to grow” (HMG, 2010, p.41)

- Reoriented towards ‘ambitious’ entrepreneurship and businesses with high growth potential to scale-up

Rhetoric: ‘every business matters’ vs Reality: focus on high-growth businesses to support job creation and economic growth

Uniformity in approach to business support: ‘sniffy’ about the type of growth; ‘cherry picking’ (or just taking what they can?)

Heterogeneity of local economies: high-growth businesses are ‘few and far between’; local economy is ‘weighted towards micro-enterprise’ (DMBC, 2013)

‘Generally, money is less easy to come by. Going forward, the policies are developing in the City Region based around maximising that public sector investment.’ (LEP representative)

‘We won’t be able to support everything, but support the things that are going to give us the biggest impact.’ (LEP representative)

‘Although we absolutely understand and know that growth has to be a priority, because of the make-up of our economy we can’t just ignore the small to medium enterprises from a point of view of “If they don’t wish to tick a growth box we just ignore them; let them get on with it”, because all that will happen is there’ll be more dropping out the bottom than we’ll be putting back in the top.’ (Local Stakeholder)
‘Team Doncaster’ Local Strategic Partnership: “to set the strategic direction to effectively meet local needs and priorities for the further improvement of Doncaster”

Divergences between the Strategic Economic Plan and Local Economic Growth Plan: struggle between doing what is right for the locality and doing what is right for the SCR

Entrepreneurship is “tolerated only within a highly restricted range of parameters” (Tomaney, 2016, p.5)

“Because of the devolution and the funding going through to the LEPs, we’ve got a situation where the LEPs have got targets and they’ve got priorities in terms of where they feel the agendas moving, but then we also have a responsibility locally to the business community and the politicians that we serve.’ (LS)

‘We’ve got to work very closely with [the LEP] and demonstrate that if you invest in us we’re able to turn that into jobs and economic growth’ (Local Stakeholder)
Centralisation by stealth

- Devolution/austerity paradox: filtering initiatives and policies through the lens of national priorities
- Democratic accountability issues; criticism from local business communities on business needs not being addressed
- Intrascalar tensions: passing responsibility upwards
- Governance as a ‘multi-scalar game of relationship jockeying’ (Jones, 2013)
Reflections

- ‘Rhetoric-reality gap’ (Ayres et al., 2017)
- Illusion of power: governance has become a game of negotiating power and resources between and within scales, and within the confinements of centrally prescribed objectives
- What does this mean for the future of devolution? ‘One Yorkshire’ - back to regionalism?
- Is another rescaling the solution?
- Achieving multi-level governance: less of an issue of scale
