

RSA Blog Guidelines

- The suggested length of articles is between 500-800 words.
- A photo of the author and at least one photo of the study area must be included.
- Author names and work place affiliations are required with all posts. Authors have the option of providing their Twitter handle. Any author can note that he or she is writing in a personal capacity.
- Posts should be wrote in a more conversational style than traditional academic papers, yet aim to convey scholarly ideas pertaining to the topic. The Editorial Team reserves the right to copyedit submitted articles, which may include suggestions regarding spelling, grammar, formatting and use of evidence.
- All articles should be evidence-based and backed by research. While there is no requirement on the number of references used, the Editorial Team suggests that at least two sources of information be included, which will ideally be hyperlinked throughout the text.

Please email submissions to RSABlog@regionalstudies.org