

Publish with the Regional Studies Association

If you are presenting a paper at this conference, we encourage you to consider a submission to an RSA journal or our other publishing platforms. Following you will find an overview of our publishing programme:

RSA Journals

Area Development and Policy <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/toc/rard20/current>

Area Development and Policy (ADP) publishes original academic research examining the multi-scalar and geographically differentiated relationships between economic and political organization, ways of life and work and their context, as they shape regions, cities, rural areas and their inter-relationships.

Geographically it concentrates on issues relating to the Greater BRICS and aims to publish research emerging from these countries as well from the developed world.

ADP recognizes that the economic, political, cultural and geographical context plays a fundamental role in shaping development. ADP therefore recognizes that research should examine the role of diverse national and regional institutional configurations and values, and that theories should derive from the experiences of these countries and regions and not necessarily from theories derived from the possibly exceptional experiences of Northwest Europe and North America. ADP aims to expand common ground while accepting differences, improve mutual communication and increase cooperation and shared learning.

All submitted research is subject to rigorous peer review, involving initial editor screening and anonymized refereeing by at least two referees.

Instructions for authors can be found at <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/action/authorSubmission?show=instructions&journalCode=rard20>

Why publish with Area Development and Policy?

ADP is exceptional in that it sets out to publish research reflecting a range of perspectives and approaches that emerge from the Greater BRICS/Global South and East and by scholars who see the world through a variety of lenses, including ones not frequently reflected in mainstream Western journals. A unique project of this kind is important in contributing to international communication, dialogue and understanding. To this end, ADP allows authors to contribute in their own research writing tradition rather than having to conform to Euro-American norms. This journal is ground breaking in this respect, and this feature has been widely welcomed by the global research community.

ADP is listed in key citation databases and indexes:

- Clarivate Analytics' Emerging Sources Citation Index
- Scopus

Along with standard Research Articles (8,000 words) and Review Articles (6,000 words), ADP also welcomes Research Notes (short articles presenting the results of original research and which briefly situates the research in relation to the existing empirical and theoretical literature) of up to 4,000 words, and Commentaries (short articles commenting in a significant way on, or supplementing arguments and evidence in, a Research Article or a Review Article) of up to 2,000 words.

Regional Studies, Regional Science

<https://rsa.tandfonline.com/toc/rsrs20/current>

Regional Studies, Regional Science (RSRS) is an interdisciplinary gold open access journal and particularly welcomes submissions from authors working on regional issues in geography, economics, planning, and political science.

The journal features a streamlined peer-review process and quick turnaround times from submission to acceptance. Authors will normally receive a decision on their manuscript within 60 days of submission. Instructions for authors can be found at <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/action/authorSubmission?show=instructions&journalCode=rsrs20>

Why publish with Regional Studies, Regional Science?

RSRS allows for a range of article types including full length research articles of up 8,000 words, shorter papers of around 5,000 words and a 'regional graphics' section, which capitalises upon the importance of geographic data visualisation in our field. We are also happy to accept review papers, and more descriptive papers, so long as they contribute something new. The Editors are always happy to discuss potential submissions. The journal also offers a mentored publishing route for PhD students and early career academics.

"The greatest value of the student and early career mentored section in RSRS is its high-quality mentorship that is fast and constructive. With the guidance received, I have not only managed to produce a better piece of work but above all I have gained valuable knowledge on how to transmit my research in a precise, structured and clear manner. This is a key asset to merit. Many thanks!" Anastasiia Konstantynova, Post-Doc Researcher in Territorial Competitiveness Orkestra, Basque Institute for Competitiveness, San Sebastian, Spain

Details on the student and early career mentored section can be found at <https://think.taylorandfrancis.com/rsrs-early-career-papers/>

RSRS is listed in key citation databases and indexes:

- Scopus
- Clarivate Analytics' Emerging Sources Citation Index
- Rated 'A' in the Australian Business Deans Council Journal Quality List
- Listed in the Directory of Open Access Journals

Article Processing Charge (APC)

Open Access journals charge an APC to cover production related costs. Open Access which means that the article is freely and permanently available online. There is no additional subscription fee, article pay-to-view fee or any other form of access fee; and no publication embargo is applied. This means that your paper will be freely accessible to anyone globally with internet access and thus increase and widen the readership particularly also to policy makers and practitioners.

RSA members benefit from a reduced APC for accepted submissions to Regional Studies, Regional Science:

\$244 USD/£189 GBP/€217 EUR for a short article ($\leq 3,000$ words)

$486 USD/£374 GBP/€431 EUR for a long article ($> 3,000$ words).

The rates for non-RSA members are:

\$400 USD/£310 GBP/€355 EUR for a short article ($\leq 3,000$ words)

$800 USD/£615 GBP/€710 EUR for a long article ($> 3,000$ words).

Authors publishing via the mentored publishing route for PhD students and early career academics have the APC covered by the RSA.

Regional Studies <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/toc/cres20/current>

Regional Studies (RS) is a leading international journal covering the development of theories and concepts, empirical analysis and policy debate in the field of regional studies. The journal publishes original research spanning the economic, social, political and environmental dimensions of urban and regional (subnational) change. The distinctive purpose of RS is to connect insights across intellectual disciplines in a systematic and grounded way to understand how and why regions and cities evolve. It publishes research that distils how economic and political processes and outcomes are contingent upon regional and local circumstances. The journal is a pluralist forum, which showcases diverse perspectives and analytical techniques.

Essential criteria for papers to be accepted for RS are that they make a substantive contribution to scholarly debates, are sub-national in focus, conceptually well-informed, empirically grounded and methodologically sound. Submissions are also expected to engage with wider debates that advance the field of regional studies and are of interest to readers of the journal.

Instructions for authors can be found at <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/action/authorSubmission?show=instructions&journalCode=cres20>

Besides papers for the main part of the journal, RS accepts also the following types of article/ submissions: Urban and Regional Horizons is a periodic section dedicated to agenda-setting work that stimulates new thinking and novel approaches to addressing the big intellectual questions, issues and challenges in regional studies.

Policy Debates is a periodic section that provides a forum for analysis and debate about important policy issues of international relevance in urban and regional development.

Book Reviews provide analysis and comment on key recent publications in regional studies.

Special Issues draw together contributions around key themes in regional studies from established and emerging researchers in the field.

Why publish in Regional Studies?

RS is listed in key citation databases and indexes and has an Impact Factor of 3.074 (2018).

Spatial Economic Analysis <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/toc/rsea20/current>

Spatial Economic Analysis (SEA) is an economics journal dedicated to the development of theory and methods in spatial economics, published by two of the world's leading learned societies in the analysis of spatial economics, the Regional Studies Association and the British and Irish Section of the Regional Science Association International.

A spatial perspective has become increasingly relevant to our understanding of economic phenomena, both on the global scale and at the scale of cities and regions. The growth in international trade, the opening up of emerging markets, the restructuring of the world economy along regional lines, and overall strategic and political significance of globalization, have re-emphasised the importance of geographical analysis. Spatial variations in economic development within cities and regions are also highly topical subjects for intellectual enquiry and have long been the focus of policy initiatives by national, regional and local governments.

The awakening emphasis on space among economists has been stimulated by the emergence of a new breed of theory, namely 'new economic geography' or 'geographical economics'. This new theory adds a significant new dimension to the already existing theoretical tools of spatial economics, which broadly aim to analyse the role of geography and location in economic phenomena. Additionally, spatial economic analysis is increasingly being supported by the emergence of new analytical methods, with an explosion of interest in new models and techniques of spatial data analysis and data visualisation (GIS). Spatial econometrics is becoming increasingly recognised as a valuable sub-discipline among mainstream econometricians.

Instructions for authors can be found at <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/action/authorSubmission?show=instructions&journalCode=rsea20>

Why publish in Spatial Economic Analysis?

SEA is listed in key citation databases and indexes and has an Impact Factor of 1.902 (2018).

Territory, Politics, Governance <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/toc/rtep20/current>

Territory, Politics, Governance (TPG) is an interdisciplinary journal committed to the development of theory and research in territorial politics and the governance of space. This journal creates a platform on which to explore the interface between territory, politics, economy, identity and the organisation of political space. It confronts topical and emergent issues of world economic and political concern. The journal publishes original, high quality international scholarship from this growing, international and increasingly vibrant field directed at a worldwide academic audience and at policy makers, activists and other communities of practice.

To be accepted, a paper must adhere to a high standard of scholarship and make an important contribution to this emerging field. Original paper submissions are sought from political scientists, geographers, sociologists, planners, lawyers, humanists and others working on territorial politics and the governance of space.

We encourage contributions that develop the field and promote communication across spatial and disciplinary borders. The following examples illustrate some of the subjects of interest:

- Links between territories and politics across time and space
- Globalization and geopolitical imaginations
- Territorial identities and politics
- Theories of socio-spatial relations such as territories, places, scales, and networks
- Territory, planning, and development
- Multi-level governance, federalism, and supranational organizations
- Territories of resistance
- Spaces of postcolonial governance

Instructions for authors can be found at <https://rsa.tandfonline.com/action/authorSubmission?show=instructions&journalCode=rtep20>

Why publish in Territory, Politics, Governance?

The journal is included in the Thomas Reuters Emerging Sources Citation Index and Scopus, has an Impact Factor of 2.729 (2018) and a significant circulation footprint as it is distributed with its sister journals, Regional Studies, Spatial Economic Analysis and Area Development and Policy. It is essential reading for academics and practitioners alike.

Other RSA publishing platforms

RSA Regions and Cities Book Series www.routledge.com/Regions-and-Cities/book-series/RSA

In today's globalised, knowledge-driven and networked world, regions and cities have assumed heightened significance as the interconnected nodes of economic, social and cultural production, and as sites of new modes of economic governance and policy experimentation.

This book series brings together incisive and critically engaged international and interdisciplinary research on this resurgence of regions and cities, and should be of interest to geographers, economists, sociologists, political scientists and cultural scholars, as well as to policy-makers involved in regional and urban development.

If you wish to discuss an idea for a book in the RSA Book Series, please contact Natalie Tomlinson at Natalie.Tomlinson@tandf.co.uk.

RSA Blog www.regionalstudies.org/category_news/rsa-blog/

The RSA Blog has been running since 2010 and provides an online platform for the RSA and its community to share short, engaging articles on research and the latest developments in the field. The writing style within the Blog is less academic than academic journal articles.

If you wish to discuss an idea for a Blog article, please contact the Blog Editor Joshua Barrett at RSABlog@regionalstudies.org.

Regions e-Zine <https://regions.regionalstudies.org/>

The Regions e-Zine is the RSA's online and open access digital magazine. The Regions e-Zine has become a vital tool to showcase the excellent regional-based research carried out by all members and friends of the Regional Studies Association. Regions e-Zine publishes three issues a year.